ROBERT H. CLAXTON : From Parsifal to Pern: Early Radio in Argentina, 19201944 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised From Parsifal to Pern: Early Radio in Argentina, 19201944:

This history of Argentina's pioneering efforts in broadcasting shows how the country set the pace for almost all radio innovations in the region. The country's influence in radio was so great that by 1940 Argentina had the second largest commercial radio network in the world.

"Adds substantially to our understanding of early broadcasting in Latin America, revealing radio's pervasive presence and pivotal importance in the growth of modern Argentina." --UpfAbout the AuthorRobert H. Claxton, professor emeritus of history at the State University of West Georgia, is the author of several books, including Dependency Unbends: Case Studies in InterAmerican Relations.
