"Dozens of ways to entertain your offspring." Reader's Digest "Jam-packed full of brilliant and inspiring activities for kids." ActiveDad "It's amazing what you can do with a smartphone, a laptop, and a little imagination. By the best-selling authors of Be the Coolest Dad on the Block (Broadway Books), this trail-blazing book shows how the gadgetry in every home can be used to bring families together instead of driving them apart. From Google-racing to geocaching, code-breaking to filmmaking to robot baiting, it's bursting with over two hundred new, exciting, and creative ideas for all ages more than half of them the authors' inventions.

About the Author Steve Caplin is the author of several bestselling books on computer graphics. He's passionate about technology, and likes nothing more than tinkering with the latest gadgets, software and power tools. He divides his spare time between playing the accordion and repairing his children's iPods. Simon Rose is a film critic, award-winning screenwriter and author. He likes country walks and playing cricket, and loves trying out new games with his children. Simon plays the cello and the spoons. He's the proud owner of a shiny new MP3 player, and looks forward to hours of happy listening once Steve shows him how to use it.
