I'm glad I read it By Ryan Essex As someone new to The Industry and looking for more information and a behind-the-scenes sort of look at the life and work of a Prop Master, I'm glad I read it. Not the most fantastic prose (and it's not terribly well edited, either) but the stories were interesting and I did learn quite a bit. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. HIGHLY recommend, By Customer This book is incredibly well done, Like having a good friend sit and tell you of all their best stories from 'the industry'. I will never look at movies the same way, and have a list of films i want to go back and rewatch after reading this! So good... Can't wait for the hardcopy to be released so I can gift it to all the movie lovers in my life.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Good book on props.By Jerry GarciaGood book if you want to learn what goes on in the movie industry as far as props go. All aspects of movie making behind the scenes have always fascinated me so I am reading all these books to satisfy my curiosity and this book sure did.

HOLLYWOOD From Below the Line: A Prop Master's Perspective Steven M. Levine, a veteran Hollywood property master, through both humorous recollections and poignant stories, not only takes the reader onto a Hollywood set as a

Steven clearly shows how vitally important props are to an actor--and to a film. His book is full of amazing information, anecdotes, and details only an insider would know. This is a wonderful, personal view of an often-overlooked, rarely written about, fascinating part of show business. My personal favorite is the chapter on Pee-wee's Big Adventure! -- --Paul
About the Author During his 39-year career, Levine logged 73,000+ hours working on films as a property master (or assistant) on 30+ feature films and countless episodes of television productions. Growing up in Hollywood, he took after his father, Allan Levine, a long-time property master who founded the well-known prop rental house on Venice Boulevard in LA, The Hand Prop Room. Steven lives with his wife and two dogs in Manhattan Beach, California.
