saw in the "Look inside" feature
Don't buy this if you:
*Take astrology seriously and are looking for a good, detailed book
*Cannot live with the fact that half the population on Earth is shoved into 12 generalized categories, all of them being bastards
*The face on the cover disturbs you (because there's more inside! :D)
Overall, this book is definitely NOT supposed to be taken seriously. Don't believe me by looking/reading the cover? Let me pull out a few quotes....
"If, even after reading this chapter, you still want to experience what it feels like to have a relationship with a Scorpio bastard, find a busy freeway and throw yourself under a large truck."
"When to do the deed: Don't. The Virgo bastard does for sex what mad cow disease did for the traditional pot roast."
There you go. If you didn't find the above quotes funny, entertaining or tolerable, don't buy this book. Meanwhile, if you did enjoy the quotes, the book will definitely be worth it. One thing though, it's a great book and all, but I advise on getting it used, since the book is so short (130-ish pages,) $10+ may be a bit steep.

By LeaJacqueline231 first read this book about ten years ago. Even now when I need to pull myself out of a funk with a good belly laugh this one still does the trick every time...especially the chapters dealing with Pisces, Sagittarius and Cancerian males. I purchased copies for my sisters and several friends, it's THAT funny!
People who are griping about how mean or distorted the book is are missing the point. It's obviously not meant to be taken as science. The authors are aiming for laughs and they deliver-even though quite a bit of it is also spot on accurate from my personal experience.
I'd give it TEN stars if I could!

From Publishers Weekly
Repeating their British-style title epithet so often that it loses any pejorative value, the authors ("both fire signs") offer firmly tongue-in-cheek characterizations of men, organized by sign, for the date-weary hetero woman. Witness "The Libra Bastard": "The poor, confused bastard. It's not his fault. Life in the modern world is getting more and more complex and there are so many decisions to make. He now has to decide between gel and mousse to style his hair every morning. The stress is unbelievable." Copyright 2002 Cahners Business Information, Inc.
About the Author
Adele Lang was born in London, but moved to Perth, Australia when she was 16, living mostly in Melbourne after that, and finally she moved back to London in 1997. She also began her career as an advertising copywriter, but segued into TV scriptwriting (in Australia), magazine columnist, newspaper feature writer, and author. She has had several books published, including Bosstrology, The Best Book of Girls Behaving Badly... Ever and How To Spot a Bastard by His Star Sign. Currently Adele is the astrology columnist for Marie Claire.
Susi Rajah has been an art director, copywriter, and graphic designer, and has won numerous awards including the covered advertising CLIO award (1997). But all the while she has had an abiding interest in everything "new age", particularly astrology. Originally from Malaysia, Susi lived most of her life all across Australia and New Zealand, and she and her husband recently moved to California.
