The book is full of warm and tender stories of growing up poor in a small rural Illinois town. With equal parts humor and love, the author briefly chronicles life in a family with twelve siblings and little money. Particularly touching are the stories of his parents, his oldest brother Benny, and his wife Carol. I am certain the author's family was previously unaware of some of this personal history. Hopefully this book will motivate the reader to put down Facebook and Instagram and share their own personal narrative with their family. I hope there is a sequel!!! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By CustomerGreat book!!! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. A treat! By S. H. Baxter Huber is a born storyteller and writer. A quick read; humorous and touching.

A series of remembrances of growing up in Raymond, Illinois a quiet farming community of 814 nice people located near the intersection of Routes 66 and 48 in about the center of the state.
