From Kalmus Classic Edition : Sonata for Clarinet and Piano, Op. 167: Part(s) (Kalmus Edition) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Sonata for Clarinet and Piano, Op. 167: Part(s) (Kalmus Edition):

Great late-romantic piece but *note* for Clarinet in A, not B-flat By Nonce This a great sonata, but please note: check inside the score as allows you to do and you'll see it's scored for Clarinet in A, not in the more common (transposed) B-flat, meaning you'll have some serious issues if you use a B-flat and play with a piano because you're in two different keys. And some actual product info: this was written in the 1870s and intended as either a flute or A-clarinet sonata. The piano part is more difficult than piano sonata parts often are but it's a nice alternative if you're bored with Brahms but are looking for something in the same general style; as with all sheet music, it's not a bad idea to look at some video clips before you purchase. Finally, per video clips, the entire sonata runs about 20 minutes.

A B-Flat Calrinet Solo, composed by Carl Reinecke.
