Bernhard Heiden : Sonata for Horn Piano before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Sonata for Horn Piano:

The only thing I thought was weird was that in the piano part, the horn part is not transposed to the concert key, usually they are. But hey, not a bad thing, not like the piano player is playing the horn part. I was very happy that it arrived unscathed, and safely pressed between some thick cardboard. 0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Well written. By Steve Park. This piece has a nice flow to it. It has some rhythmic challenges and you need a good high range, although it does not stay high and is not tiring to play. It doesn't go low at all (no bass clef). An advanced high school or college horn player can play this piece.

Bernhard Heiden (1910-2000) was born in Germany, but settled in the United States in the 1930s, later to become a US citizen. Best known for his band repertoire.
